

The academy of converging media

...is an organisation for continued education at the dffb (German Film- and Television Academy Berlin). Its aim is to professionalize the media industry, enrich the digital realm with content and propagate interdisciplinary discussions on European media and culture.

The programme of the acm

... started in 2002 with two intensive courses each focusing on one particular aspect of the new media: interaction and cooperation. It links professionals from all disciplines and all European countries with researchers, experts and educators in the new technologies and media to help them prepare for the shift of paradigm in their working world and influence the impact digital technology has on our culture.

Founders of the acm

... are the dffb, Master School Drehbuch and ProjectScope. The academy of converging media plans to offer further courses focusing on other issues in the new media and look at other areas affected by the emergence of new technologies.

This is the documentation

...of the part-time courses, which were held by the academy of converging media in 2003. To explore the pages please follow the navigation on the left side.

Copyright

...is claimed for the contents of the whole documentation; except the press information and the press releases it may not be redistributed.

For more information about the academy of converging media or for current dates and deadlines please visit our website <http://www.academy-of-converging-media.com>.